

Kristy Jarvis

Vice President, Corporate Operations
Joined SIAA in 2002

As Vice President of Corporate Operations, Kristy is responsible for overseeing SIAA corporate and administrative activities, along with managing the merger and integration of acquired businesses into the SIAA organization.

In addition to her responsibilities for SIAA, Kristy is a key contact for the accounting staff of all master agencies - providing training, support, and troubleshooting in relation to financial systems. She also provides oversight on financial and operational data related to member agencies and master agencies.

Kristy was instrumental in the development, and associated launch in 2018, of SIAA's Reports & Payments system. This major software application is used throughout SIAA's model by all master agencies and member agencies. She reviews key input and output for accuracy, ensuring complete integration with SIAA's financial software. Kristy provides on-going training on this critical system relative to usage, reporting, and accessing meaningful data.

Kristy performs extensive financial analysis utilizing SIAA's financial systems as well as standard software, such as excel. Executive management relies on her expertise and insights to provide meaningful information utilized for strategic management and planning.

She maintains responsibility for many components of the Human Resources function, including staff benefits implementation.

Prior to joining SIAA, Kristy was an auditor in Portland, Maine with McDonald, Page, Schatz, Fletcher.

She earned her Master's degree in Accounting from the University of New Hampshire, Durham, New Hampshire.

Kristy and her husband live in Lee, New Hampshire with her son, Tamiru, who she adopted from Ethiopia in 2008 at the age of 3.
